ACCLAIM congratulates Tony Fasulo, Managing Partner on his contribution to the book Wellness & Work, Employee Assistance Programming in Canada

Toronto, ON (September 30, 2005)— ACCLAIM Ability Management Inc. is very proud to announce that Tony Fasulo, Managing Partner, is a contributing writer to Wellness and Work, Employee Assistance Programming in Canada, Edited by Rick Csiernik.

Tony's chapter, Disability Management in the Canadian Context, co-written by Sara Martel, highlights the history of Disability Management and how to implement a Disability Management program in any organization.

Tony Fasulo is both founder and a Managing Partner of ACCLAIM Ability Management Ltd. He is a graduate of the National Institute of Disability Management and Research (NIDMAR) certification program, a Registered Rehabilitation Professional, a seasoned Vocational Evaluator, a Certified Disability Management Professional, a Certified Disability Management Auditor, and has his designation as an Associate in Life Health Claims (International Claims Association). He has garnered his experience through his past employment with two leading insurance companies and as Director of Psychosocial Rehabilitation Services for the Canadian Mental Health Association. Tony's wide range of Disability Management skills, including his NIDMAR certification have enabled him to work effectively with both small and national companies across Canada; they have also made him a sought after speaker within the disability management industry. Tony's vision and leadership has led to the creation and success of ACCLAIM national operations.

ACCLAIM Ability Management Inc. is a national leader in disability management services for over a decade. With offices nationwide they are available to provide disability management services, including workplace health and wellness assessments to employers, long-term and short-term disability carriers, auto insurers, third party administrators, solicitors and government programs.
